A Brief Sketch OF THE Geography and History of Wales.

WALES, a principality of GREAT BRITAIN, is situated west of England, and was called by the Welsh Cumrie, the land of the Cymri; and by the Romans, Cambria. It extends from the Bristol channel on the South, to the Irish Sea on the north, 136 miles; and, from St. George's channel on the west, to the English counties of Chester, Salop, Hereford, and Monmouth, on the east; is from 40 to 90 miles wide, and divided into twelve counties.

It is a rough, mountainous country, but in some parts, interspersed with beautiful and fertile valleys. The plain of Glamorgan lies in the south part, and is very productive and the most populous.

The Welsh mountains and valleys are noted for their picturesque beauty, and attract many visitors. Wales produces almost all kinds of minerals; coal, iron and copper in large quantities.

The Welsh, are descendants of the ancient Britons or Celts, and their language is the Cymric Celtic. They were a hardy, generous, brave and patriotic people, rather irritable and superstitious. They are nearly all Protestants and most of them are Dissenters.

After the conquest by the Saxons, the Teutons called them Welsh—a foreigner, wanderer; which term was adopted by the English; hence the name of Wales which was applied to their country; but they called themselves Cymro, pl. Cymri, a countryman, having a country, in contradistinction to the foreign invader. They maintained their independence under their Princes, though harrassed and often invaded by the Romans, Saxons and Danes; never being subdued until conquered by Edward I, in 1282. The title of Prince of Wales was given by Edward to his son who was born at Carnarvon Castle in 1284, and the title has been borne by the eldest son of the English sovereign ever since. Subsequent to the conquest, they made several unsuccessful attempts to regain their freedom; and, in 1400, when led by Owen Glendower, they made their last effort and continued the struggle until he was slain in 1415. After his death the Welsh gradually assumed the English laws, but the two countries did not become identical in all essential points until 1536.

Notwithstanding this union, the Welsh were very tenacious of their language and literature, to which they were very much attached; “and their language is not dying out like the Irish and Scotch Gaelic, but has a genuine literary as well as oral existence even now, though the changes have been great since the days of Taliesin, an ancient poet who wrote A. D. 520–570, yet it is the same tongue as Julius Cæsar heard when he invaded Britain 54, B. C., and is to be regarded with veneration as the solitary living link that unites those distant ages with our own.”

That their language is copious and expressive there can be no question, as Owen Pughe's Dictionary contains 100,000 words and is illustrated by 12,000 quotations, 1793-1803. Several of their ancient books as well as standard works have been reproduced and new works published during the present century, and some of them within a few years, which confirm their strong attachment to their language and literature.

It was from this hardy, persevering and brave people that the CRANDALL FAMILY had its origin.

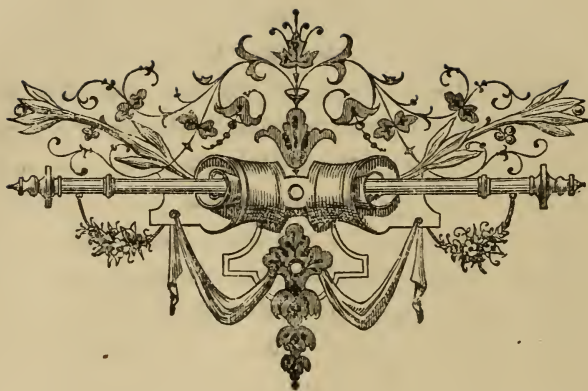

I am aware that the above sketch is very remotely, if in any way, connected with our genealogy; but, as our ancestry were of that people, and as Wales has so long been merged in the English government, the common reader would hardly imagine that it was entitled to any more consideration than other sections of England. But, the Welsh are a peculiar people, mostly retaining their language, customs and literature, as well as their persevering and industrious habits; and, taking this view, I thought it would be admissible as an introduction, as well as entertaining, and perhaps incite the reader to further inquiry into their history.

In preparing the above, I have consulted Chambers' Encyclopedia, and Appleton's American Cyclopedia, for dates and essential points.

A. P. CRANDALL.

Genealogy

OF A BRANCH OF THE CRANDALL FAMILY.

THE CRANDALLS are of Welsh origin, but the time when they left Wales, or from what part of the country they came, is unknown; but that several of the name arrived at Boston as early as 1634 or 1635 there is no doubt, as the name of REV. JOHN CRANDALL, a Baptist preacher, appears in the historical accounts of the Massachusetts Bay and Plymouth Colonies as early as 1635. At this time the persecution of Roger Williams was causing great excitement in the Colonies, as many were opposed to the extreme measures of the Puritan authorities, and, late in the autumn of 1635, the church of Salem was forced to dismiss him from their pulpit. He was ordered to leave the colony within six weeks; but, early in the winter of 1636, the authorities of Boston ordered his arrest that he might be sent to England, as a ship was then ready to sail. In some way he learned of these proceedings, and fled into the snowy wilderness, without guide, food or shelter, and it was late in the Spring when he reached Narragansett Bay. Here he was met in the most friendly manner by the Sachems of the Narragansetts, from whom he obtained a large grant of land, and founded Providence.*

*Martyn's Pilgrim Fathers.

“As this domain was his, he might have lived as Lord-proprietor, but principle forbade.” Liberty and freedom of conscience were the ruling maxims with him through life, and his possessions became an asylum for the oppressed, and all well-disposed people received a hearty welcome.

The REV. JOHN CRANDALL, who was openly persecuted for his religious opinions, was one of the earliest to seek this asylum of freedom, as there is a reference to John Crandall at Providence, 1637. Also, that he was imprisoned in Boston in 1651,† and that he died in 1676; consequently there can be no doubt that he was the father of John Crandall, Jr., Eber, and others. How long he remained in Providence is uncertain, for he became early a resident of Newport, and was prominent with the Baptists there; and, subsequently, the first Baptist Elder at Westerly.

There is an opinion among some members of our branch of the family, that our descent was from one of three brothers, one of whom settled in Rhode Island, one in Connecticut, and the other brother further south.

This idea, I think, I can explain from information obtained from H. N. Crandall, of West Bloomfield, N. Y, who is a descendant of Edward, one of the three brothers, as will be seen hereafter, which will convince those of our branch, who hold that opinion, of their mistake.

The three brothers referred to were named Edward, John and Henry, who came from Wales, and landed in Boston in 1634 or 1635, and may have come at the same time with the Rev. John Crandall; and may have been relatives of his.

†Savage's Genealogical Dictionary.

Edward was a mechanic, and John and Henry were seamen. They settled in Providence, where Edward died and was buried in 1695, as was also his son Edward. Of the two other brothers very little is known, as they followed the sea for a livelihood. One peculiarity of Edward's descendants was, that the eldest son in several generations was named Edward.

The original way of spelling our name in Welsh was Craun Dell, meaning in that language, Iron dell, as learned by H. N. Crandall from researches in their branch of the family.

The earliest name in our branch of the family, as far as we have any knowledge, is the Rev. John Crandall, who landed in Boston in 1634 or 1635, and became a resident of Providence in 1637; but when, or where, he was born, is unknown; and the time of his two marriages, name of his first wife, and birth of his children, except one, is equally obscure.

JOHN CRANDALL—

MARRIED—

1. ———. Died August 1, 1670.

2. Hannah ———. Died ——— 1678.

He resided at Providence, Newport and Westerly, R. I.

Died at Newport ——— 1676.

The following incidents in his life are taken from Munsell's Chart of the Crandall Family, and are corroborated by the Register of the N. E. Hist. and Genealogical Society, and other data, but not so explicit as in the Chart.

CRANDALL:

He was early associated with the Baptists of Newport, subsequently becoming the first Elder of that denomination at Westerly.

1651—July 21. He, with John Clark and Obadiah Holmes, “being the representatives of the church in Newport, upon the request of William Witter, of Lynn, arrived there; he being a brother-in-the church, who, by reason of his advanced age, could not undertake so great a journey as to visit the church." While Mr. Clark was preaching, the constables came into the house and apprehended them, and the next morning they were sent to prison in Boston.

1651—July 31. He was sentenced to pay a fine of £5, or be publicly whipped. He was released from prison upon his promise of appearing at next court.

1655—FREEMAN.

1658-'59-'62-'63—COMMISSIONER.

1661—Aug. 27. He and eight others signed a letter to Court of Commissioners of Rhode Island, concerning a tract of land at Westerly, Rhode Island, that they and others desired approbation and assistance in settling upon.

1667—DEPUTY.

1667—Oct. 17. Westerly. He was complained of in a letter from Connecticut to Rhode Island authorities, for having come on west side of Pawcatuck river, and laid out about a mile square of land to his son.

1669—May 14. He and Joseph Torrey were appointed Commissioners to treat with Connecticut, relative to jurisdiction of lands. The sum of 35 shillings was lent to the Colony of Rhode Island, by individuals, for John Crandall's voyage to Connecticut.

1669—May 18. His name was in the list of inhabitants.

1669—Nov. 18. A letter was sent him by Governor and Assistants of Connecticut, complaining that he and others had appropriated a great parcel of Stonington township, and seeking for satisfaction.

1670—March 11. He and Tobias Saunders answered on behalf of Westerly, denying any guilt in matter complained of; “but we are very sensible of great wrongs that we have sustained by them for several years.” The letter closes: “As for your advice, to agree to those, our neighbors of Stonington and the other gentlemen, we hope that your Colony and ours will, in the first place, lovingly agree, and we question not but there will be an agreement between us and our neighbors of Stonington, and the rest of the gentlemen.”

1670—June 19. He, as Conservator of the Peace at Westerly, wrote a letter, a little prior to this date, to the Governor of Rhode Island, informing him of an entrance made into our jurisdiction by some of Connecticut, and of their carrying away some inhabitants prisoners.

1670—Aug. 2. His first wife was buried.

1670—Oct. 3. He deeded son John, of Newport, for love, &c., “all my goods, chattels, debts, household utensils, and all other personal estate, movable or immovable, quick or dead — putting him in quiet and peaceable possession by payment of 1 shilling in silver,” by his son.

1670—’71—DEPUTY (from Westerly).

1671—Jan. 30. Bills were allowed by Assembly for hire of boat, to go to Narragansett with Mr. John Crandall, Sr., in the year 1670, and for hire of Sarah Reape’s horse for the use of Mr. John Crandall to go to Hartford.

1671—May 2. He having been, “as is asserted,” apprehended, and now is in durance, by the Colony of Connecticut, and having desired the advice of the Governor, &c., of Rhode Islrnd, whether to give bond, or abide imprisonment; the Assembly advises him to give no bond, and that if he be forced to imprisonment, the Colony will bear his charges, and endeavor to justify his actings therein.

1671—May 6. He was allowed 20 shillings to bear his charge to Connecticut.

1675—Jan. 23. In a letter from Ruth Burdick, of Westerly, to her father, Samuel Hubbard, of Newport, she says: “Brother Crandall hath the ague and fever still, and have been but little amongst us this winter; Sister Crandall is brought to bed with a son, and is in a hopeful way.”

1676—He died at Newport, having moved there on account of the Indian war.

1676—Nov. 29. His death is alluded to in a letter from Samuel Hubbard, who wrote a few years later: “My dear brother, John Crandall, of Squamicut, is dead, and his first wife, a Sabbath keeper, the first that died in that blessed faith in New England.

His second wife may have been Hannah Gaylord, born 1647, Jan. 30, daughter of William and Ann (Porter) Gaylord, of Windsor, Connecticut. The said Hannah married a Crandall, as is shown by the settlement of her brother Hezekiah Gaylord’s estate, in 1677.

THE REGISTER OF THE NEW ENGLAND GENEALOGICAL AND HISTORICAL SOCIETY contains the following, in addition to the foregoing:

1669—John Crandall heads the list of free inhabitants in Westerly. His sons, James, Peter and Joseph, are in same list.

1676—In a letter from Samuel Hubbard to Dr. Stennett, pastor of the Baptist Church, Bell Lane, London, dated Newport, R. I., November, 1676, appears the following :

* * * * * “Now, dear brother, although we are not destroyed by the Indians, God has visited this land by taking away many by death — and, in this place, of all sorts. Of the old church, first, Mr. Joseph Torrey; then my dear brother, John Crandall; then John Clark; then William Weeden, a deacon; then John Salmon.”

This is, no doubt, the letter referred to Nov. 29, 1676.

13—NATHAN, born in Westerly, July 26, 1779; died June 1, 1813.

PETER CRANDALL—

The eldest son of Joshua and Abigail Crandall, by his second wife, was born at South Kingstown, R. I., August 1, 1763.

MARRIED—

Nancy Bliven, in R. I., Feb. 9, 1785. She was born June 29, 1765.

They moved to Berlin, Rensselaer Co., N. Y., about 1797, bringing their four oldest children with them, but whether his father and mother, (Joshua and Abigail,) came with them, or soon after, is uncertain. The probability is, that the children of the second marriage, then living, came with them or within a few years, as the writer, though only in his ninth year, remembers seeing Joseph, Clement and Martin at the funeral of their father in Feb., 1817, at the house of their brother Peter, where he lived and died.

Clement and Martin L. were then living in Troy, N. Y., Peter and Joseph in Berlin, and Nathan previously in some part of Rensselaer County.

It is unknown whether any of the children of the first marriage of Joshua came to Rensselaer County to reside. There is no evidence that they did.

Peter Crandall was a soldier of the Revolution.

When he came to Berlin the country was mostly a wilderness, and he had to endure the hardships and privations of a pioneer ; but in a few years he had a comfortable home and surroundings. After the close of the war of 1812, what was then called the "Genesee Country," having become more known, he, and his two younger sons, who were with him, became anxious to exchange their eastern,* for a western home, though they were to encounter the hardships of another wilderness.

A few years previous to this, a brother-in-law (Jesse Rogers), and a short time later, his son Luke, had located on the east side of the Genesee river in the town of Amity, Allegany Co., N. Y., near the present village of Belmont, and it was natural that he should choose a place near his relatives. He, with his two youngest sons, removed there in 1818, and soon became owners of farms in that vicinity.

*His farm was a part of the Van Rensselaer Manor, upon which an annual rent had to be paid at the office of the Patroon in Albany; the rents varying according to location and quality of land. This system had become irksome to the lessees, and a few years later so disagreeable, that a great number of them refused to pay their rents, and the result was, the "Anti-Rent War," as it was called, which continued until a purchase of land or compromise was effected. This system doubtless had its influence upon them in making the change.

His wife Nancy died at Amity, N. Y., August 15, 1824. About a year after her decease, he married Mrs. Rachel Millage, of Almond, N. Y., with whom he lived until his death at Amity, October 12, 1838; she surviving him, but we have no record of her death.

CHILDREN.

DANIEL, born Dec. 23, 1786.

LUKE, born Dec. 21, 1788.

GREEN G., born March 4, 1791.

JOSEPH, born Sept. 3, 1793.

BENJAMIN G., born Dec. 17, 1797.

WILLIAM W., born June 2, 1805.

Their records will be noticed hereafter.

DANIEL CRANDALL—

Son of Peter and Nancy Crandall, was born in Westerly, R. I., Dec. 23, 1786, and moved with his parents to Berlin, Rensselaer County, N. Y., about 1797.

MARRIED—

OLIVIA, daughter of William and Elizabeth Kendall, on the 31st of August, 1807. She was born in Berlin, August 31, 1788.

He was not a robust man, having met with a serious accident in his youth, which so impaired his health that he was unable to endure the labor of the farm; and, as the failure of health seemed permanent, his inclination was to a profession. Being impressed with the educational wants of the country at that time, he prepared himself for a teacher, which vocation he followed most successfully until his health gave way and he was compelled to seek out-of-door employment.

As a teacher, it was usual for him to instruct classes of young men in the higher branches of education, with a special regard to their chosen pursuit of life, selecting their studies accordingly.

During these years he had his own methods in the use of textbooks, adopting original plans whenever he considered the books defective. From his long experience as a teacher, he became convinced that an improved Speller was needed; consequently the COLUMBIAN SPELLING BOOK was written and published, of which he was the Author.

This book was considered a great improvement on any previously published. It contained many useful tables and other matter not embodied in similar works, and was very generally used in Central New York.

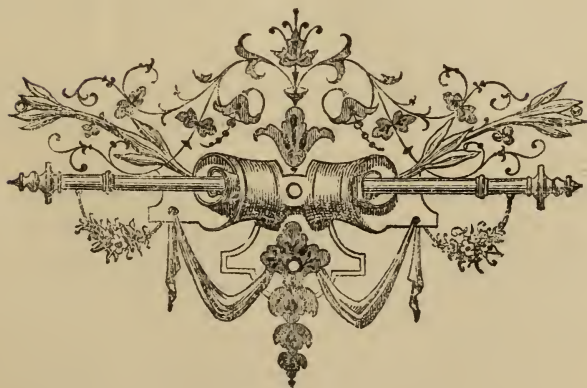

About the time that he was compelled to leave the school-room, the "Erie Canal" was completed. This was the great event of the times; and he, with many others, engaged in the transportation business, which he followed until his last sickness. In all his business transactions he was noted for his promptitude and fidelity.

He moved from Berlin to Springfield, Otsego Co., N. Y., in 1817; then to Schuyler, Herkimer Co., N. Y., in 1823; to Frankfort, the same county, in 1827; and from thence to Palmyra, Wayne Co., N. Y., in the spring of 1832, where he died Nov. 14, 1836.

She died at the same place, Nov. 4, 1865.

CHILDREN OF DANIEL CRANDALL.

FOR MEMORANDA.

NOTE.

THIS work is complete to December, 1888, so far as we can determine. The early records are not full as to dates, but amply sufficient to establish the direct line of our Ancestry as far back as 1635. We have not attempted at present to go beyond the landing in America, leaving that for some future time.

Some of the records of recent date are somewhat defective, but the best we could obtain. The time, trouble and expense, in preparing this little book, is no small item to us; still, it is a gratuity on our part to our Kindred, and if it be appreciated on their part, it will satisfy us for what we have done. Those receiving it, will confer a favor by acknowledging it to the party from whom received. We have added a few blank leaves, for Memoranda, in case anyone wishes to continue their record, or make corrections.
